The High Line Hotel

NEW YORK CITY

The High Line Hotel feels like a British country manor, not a chic Manhattan hotel. Its stellar location overlooks the High Line Park in the heart of Chelsea, but it is tucked away in a Gothic building on the grounds of the General Theological Seminary. Each of the 60 guest rooms is different, with hardwood floors and one-of-a-kind furnishings and carpets. The espresso purveyor Intelligentsia opened its first Manhattan coffee bar in the lobby. Rooms from $400; thehighlinehotel.com
